Master of Divinity Mission and Goals

We live in a rapidly changing and complex world in need of the reconciling love of God and the liberating message of the gospel. The Master of Divinity program prepares persons who will seek, embody and proclaim God's good news that liberates individuals and communities from brokenness whose sources may be personal or systemic. The program prepares students to practice and lead theological reflection with others in ways that promote ministries of personal wholeness, faithful and hospitable community, and justice - each of which transforms those involved.

1. Graduates will be able to understand, appreciate and respectfully interpret our Christian heritage so it becomes a compelling and transformative vision for the present.
2. Graduates will provide theological leadership to critically engage the contemporary world.
3. Graduates will grow in God's grace personally and spiritually so as to be of prophetic service to church and world.
4. Graduates will develop practices of theological reflection, worship, prophetic leadership and ministerial empowerment appropriate to congregational, denominational and public contexts.

Important Note for United Methodist Students:

United Methodist students preparing for ordination are encouraged to take courses that meet denominational requirements. Students should check with their annual conference regarding commissioning requirements and eligibility. In some cases it may be required that two-thirds of the denominational courses must be completed prior to the interview.
